SO WHY EGGS AND CHOCOLATE AT EASTER???

Throughout history, people have given each other eggs at spring festivals to celebrate the new season. Eggs represent new life and rebirth, and it's thought that this ancient custom became a part of Easter celebrations.

In the medieval period, eating eggs was forbidden during Lent (the 40 days before Easter) so on Easter Sunday, tucking into an egg was a real treat! This was especially true for poorer people who couldn't afford to buy meat. Eggs were given to the church as Good Friday offerings, and villagers often gave eggs as gifts to the lord of the manor at Easter. Even royals got involved – in 1290, Edward I purchased 450 eggs, which were decorated with colours or gold leaf and given out to his household.

There were lots of superstitions about eggs at Easter too. Eggs laid on Good Friday were said to turn into diamonds if they were kept for 100 years, and if your egg had two yolks it was a sign you would soon become rich. Some people thought that eggs cooked on Good Friday and eaten on Easter Sunday would improve fertility and prevent sudden death, and it became the custom for people to have their eggs blessed before eating them.

April babies are often portrayed as optimistic, natural-born leaders who are ambitious and highly achieving. Take note Brandon, Connor and Mohamed.

Clayton's Comments

March has been a very busy month! We've had probably more courses completed in one month than ever before. Plus, Charlie V and Henry both went out into excellent jobs. Too many to mention individually in the space I have here, but you know who you are! OK, here goes... (deep breath)... Six of you got your forklift licence, four of you got your food hygiene qualification, four of you got your chainsaw maintenance and crosscutting ticket, five of you got your abrasive wheels ticket, eight of you got your working at heights qualification, and four of you got your hedge and brush cutter ticket. Phew! Now that's what I'm taking about! Serious success and a month when practically everyone achieved something. Not to mention that Faith passed her L1, Brandon his L2, and Charlie M, Isaac, Will, Moses & Tye all passed Extension reviews. Well done everyone!
